

Independent Investigations

Objective:

To offer independent investigations inside and outside aviation and produce safety recommendations

Target area:

Based on many years of practice from the investigative community of commercial aviation MA&P have experience in conducting objective investigations for airlines according to the ICAO Annex 13 Guidelines. These methodologies have also been applied with success to investigations outside airlines.

So we don't limit our capability to aviation only. Most industries and risk based processes resembles each other when it comes to an incident or an accident.

Commercial Aviation has realized many years ago that even top trained, well skilled and experienced professionals can make unbelievable mistakes and cause tragic outcomes.

What happened is usually relatively easy to figure out, but why such professionals ended up in "an unexpected situation" is sometimes very difficult to explain and to understand.

Such events have to be investigated with care, with knowledge, with respect and the responsible entity must do what ever they can to prevent reoccurrences.

Don't wait until the mishap has taken place!

We can also help you establishing preventive means and preventive processes inside your organization. Did you know that the best organizational learning normally takes place, when a near miss incident is investigated thoroughly and promulgated to the implicated departments?

Why - because optimum information is available and no harm has taken place.

Should an incident/accident happen and your organization wants to get help to have the incident or the accident investigated objectively according to high standards from aviation - please contact us.
